FOREWORD

It is a great pleasure to introduce our OUT THERE Exhibition of International Artists to Nottingham, UK.

Mike Lindtner, Vienna	Marcus Gilmore, Nottingham
Theresa Moynes, Dublin	Sara Gaynor, Nottingham
Angelos Mavraidis, Athens	Rand Heidinger, Winnipeg
Joe Ganech, Brussels	Christine Zion, Vancouver

It was landscape photographer Mike Lindtner in Vienna who prompted me with the idea of leading these amazing artists and photographers to follow his solo exhibition and book launch of OUT THERE. The theme, I am sure, will resonate with everyone.

I developed friendships with these artists over several years and have seen their art mature and evolve according to their surroundings and emotions.

Their art mediums are exciting and diverse... culturally diverse. So I wanted to bring all that talent and diversity and mix them all up in one melting pot, like an artist's palette, as a platform, or canvas, to showcase their work together here.

Exciting international projects are continuing to be developed by Art Culture Tourism. I hope, when you see the art works of these artists, that they will encourage you to question and vision new art and cultural collaborations and projects between our country and theirs...and further afield.

I wish to sincerely thank the embracing efforts of Sara Gaynor, the curator of this exhibition. She also introduced me to the amazing Pete Spowage and his art gallery here in Nottingham and to Mike Sinclair, our incredible graphic designer.

Huge thanks to our main sponsor, Gleeds, together with Caron Lyon of PCM Creative, Stephanie Robertson, and our Partners and supporters over the last four months...and of course, to all our eight artists and photographers for inspiring me to stage this exhibition for everyone OUT THERE to enjoy.

Theresa Moynes

Theresa is a passionate photographer who loves horses, photography and travel. She is based in Dublin but willing to travel anywhere for an assignment. Whether photographing people or horses she just loves that split second when everything comes together and she gets that connection with her subject. She loves working with textures and overlays and uses some of her images as digital art pieces.

Marcus Gilmore

Marcus Gilmore is currently studying Graphic Design Fnd at New College Nottingham. His work exhibited here shows his keen interest in medieval and historical studies and promoting British heritage. He can be contacted via his website on www.marcusgilmoreart.com and also on Instagram.

Joe Ganech

Joe Ganech is an artist of Spanish origin who has lived in Belgium for many years. A fully self-taught artist, Joe likes to mix artistic genres, abstract, figurative, surrealism. The female portrait generally remains the basis of his work but also the cityscape which presents different places in a totally new and different way. Historical creations are also a genre that Joe appreciates very much, the modernity of digital art brings a new relief on older creations.

A MESSAGE FROM Marysia Zipser on behalf of ART CULTURE TOURISM

For a long time, my passions have been, and continue to be, Arts Promotion and Heritage Tourism Promotion.

With that comes a longing to inspire and nurture artists and photographers to believe in themselves and to cross boundaries and bridges into the unknown. There is no need to travel per se to far off lands but to realise what is on your door step and what makes you happy in your heart and soul.

In our busy and stressed-out lives, we need to have the chance to relax, chill out and slob, even for a few days, and then to gradually allow those ideas and plans to formulate in our heads. Those are the times to write notes and sketch everyday cameos or scenes in your little black book because they are a record. I wish for everyone (and everyone is creative) to have that chance to dream and aspire. Those dreams are important because they DO come true if you believe in them, and yourself.

Art Culture Tourism (ACT) has grown and evolved organically since its inception December 2013 with our first networking performance event and mini exhibition themed 'LACE' at Beeston's landmark building Anglo Scotian Mills. Our second performance event themed 'CULTURES CROSSING' at the same venue in March 2014 reached out globally. I knew then how I could 'capture' and embrace international artists, poets, writers, historians, composers, musicians, students under one roof for the Beeston community, including gallerists, to savour and to vision ahead. What I had to do was to think strategically and put my plans into ACTION, step by step.

I love mentoring young people and students, and so via this message, I hope they, and their learning institutions, and also charities, will come forward to ACT and learn with me and our team to enable them to establish their own creative pathways.

ACT wishes to be registered as a national charity by the end of this year.

Andiamo! Let's Go!
